

MEMBERS ONLY

The Dead List Miner Playbook

The exact messages, timing and send rules we use to turn an old customer list into booked appointments. Plus ready to paste templates for your industry, reply scripts and a 14 day tracker.

$0

COST PER CONTACT

14

DAYS START TO FINISH

5

TOUCHES

5

INDUSTRY PACKS

By Yvette Kahn, founder of Infinity Reach Media · Members edition, October 2026

WELCOME IN

Your first gift is already sitting in your CRM

Hey, and welcome to the community. I'm so glad you're here.

I wanted your first gift to be something you can use today, not someday. So here it is: the same win back system we run for our clients, written out so you can run it yourself.

Every business has a list of people who paid once and never came back. They didn't leave because you did something wrong. Life got busy and nobody reminded them. That list is the cheapest revenue you will ever find, because you already paid to get every single person on it.

Run this, then come tell us in the community how it went. I read every post.

Yvette

What's inside

- 1 Your one afternoon quick start
The five steps to get your first batch out the door today.
- 2 Before a single message goes out
The five point checklist and the pacing rule that protect your list.
- 3 The sequence
All five touches over fourteen days, word for word, with why each one works.
- 4 Send rules and reply scripts MEMBERS BONUS
When to keep going, when to stop, and exactly what to say when people answer.
- 5 Industry template packs MEMBERS BONUS
Fill in the blank versions for coaches, home services, salons and med spas, insurance and auto shops.
- 6 The 14 day tracker MEMBERS BONUS
A printable log so you know whether to run the list again in ninety days.

Get your first batch out this afternoon

You don't need new software or a new list. You need about two hours and the list you already have.

- 1 Export your past customers. Pull everyone who bought from you more than six months ago from your CRM, booking system, invoicing tool or even an old spreadsheet. First name, email, phone if they opted in to texts, and the date of their last visit.
- 2 Run the checklist in Part 2. Scrub out unsubscribes, bounces and current customers. This takes ten minutes and it's the step that keeps your emails out of spam.
- 3 Grab your industry pack from Part 5. Copy the messages into your email tool and fill in every highlighted `{{blank}}`. If your industry isn't listed, use the main sequence in Part 3 as is.
- 4 Get one real story for Day 8. Think of a customer who came back and what you found or fixed for them, with a real number in it. Never make this one up.
- 5 Send Day 0 to your first 25 people. Not the whole list. Twenty five today, twenty five tomorrow, then forty a day once your bounce rate looks healthy. Log it on the tracker in Part 6.

COST PER CONTACT	SEQUENCE LENGTH	TOUCHES	DAILY SEND CAP
$0	14 days	5	25 to 40

JUDGE IT ON THE RIGHT THING

Measure replies, bookings and revenue marked won. Not opens. Open tracking has been unreliable for years, and a win back campaign lives or dies on whether real conversations start.

Clear these five first

Most reactivation campaigns fail in the ten minutes before they're sent, not in the copy.

- ☐ Scrub the list. Remove anyone who has ever unsubscribed, complained or hard bounced. Keep one suppression list, checked automatically on every send, forever. This one isn't optional.

- ☐ Remove current customers. Nothing damages trust faster than "we miss you" landing in the inbox of somebody who bought last Tuesday.

- ☐ Put your real physical address in the footer. US law requires it on commercial email, and it has to be your business's own address.

- ☐ Point replies at a human. Set the reply to address to your actual inbox. This sequence is built to get replies, so catching them is the whole point.

- ☐ Give it one destination. One booking link, one phone number. If someone says yes, there should be exactly one obvious next step.

THE PACING RULE

Never send the whole list at once. Send 25 contacts a day for the first two days, then 40 a day once you've seen the bounce rate. An old list dumped in one batch is the fastest way to get every future email from your business filed as spam. That includes your invoices and password resets.

ABOUT TEXTING

Texts are held to a much stricter consent standard than email. Only text numbers that opted in to texts from you, only during business hours, and never a list you bought. If you aren't sure about consent, skip the Day 2 text. The sequence works without it.

Five touches over fourteen days

Each touch does a different job, and the order matters. You earn the right to make an offer by making the first message about them. Day 0 is the day that person's batch goes out, not a fixed calendar date.

Day 0

EMAIL

The check in

No offer, no pitch, no discount. One job: prove a human noticed they were gone. This message earns more replies than any other in the sequence, and the warmest ones.

SUBJECT

quick question, {{first_name}}

{{first_name}}, I was going back through our records this week and realised it's been a while since we last took care of you.

No pitch here. I'm genuinely curious whether we dropped the ball somewhere, or whether life just got busy. Either answer is useful to me.

If it's the second one, we're still here, and I'd love to have you back in.

Why it works: it asks a question a person can answer in four words. "Just got busy!" is a reply, and a reply is a live conversation you can book from.

Day 2

TEXT ·
OPTIONAL

The nudge

Only to numbers that opted in to texts. One line, first name, signed by a person, always with an opt out.

Hi {{first_name}}, it's {{owner_first_name}} at {{business}}. Sent you a note earlier this week. No pressure at all, just making sure it reached you. Reply STOP to opt out.

Rule: opted in numbers only, business hours only, never a list you bought.

Day 4

EMAIL

The reason to come back

Now the offer, and it should be a reason, not a discount. Discounts teach a returning customer to wait for the next one. Priority access, a seasonal check or a slot held back for them are all stronger than 20% off.

SUBJECT

holding a spot for you

{{first_name}}, following up on my note.

We've opened up {{offer}} and I've kept a few back for people we've worked with before. Takes about {{duration}}, and most people find one thing they're glad they caught early.

If you'd like one, grab whatever time suits you here: {{booking_link}}

Swap the offer, not the structure. The shape carries: you're known to us, here's something specific, here's one link. Your industry pack in Part 5 has the offer written for you.

Day 8

EMAIL

The proof

Handles the silent objection: "is it still worth it?" One specific, true story with a number in it. One customer, one problem, one outcome.

SUBJECT

what we caught last week

Thought this was worth passing on, {{first_name}}.

{{customer_first_name}} booked in last week for the same thing I mentioned. We found {{specific_finding}}. About {{$ amount}} to fix now, several times that if it had gone another season.

That's the whole reason we run these. Same link if you'd like a slot:

{{booking_link}}

Never invent this one. Use a real story, and get the customer's okay before you use their name. A made up case study is the fastest way to lose a list that already trusts you.

Day 12

EMAIL

The honest deadline

A real constraint, stated plainly. It has to actually be true: the slots do run out, the season does end. Fake urgency gets noticed, and it gets remembered.

SUBJECT

closing these out {{day}}

Quick one, {{first_name}}. We're closing out the {{offer}} slots on {{day}}, and there are {{number}} left.

After that we're back to standard scheduling, which is usually a {{wait time}} wait this time of year.

If you want one: {{booking_link}}

Watch: if the deadline passes and the same offer shows up again next week, your list learns your deadlines are decorative. Honour it.

Day 14

EMAIL

Permission to say no

The last message, and consistently the second strongest replier in the sequence. Giving someone an easy exit makes answering feel safe, and a good share of the people who reply say the opposite of no.

SUBJECT

should I stop emailing?

{{first_name}}, I don't want to be the business that keeps emailing someone who's moved on.

If now isn't the time, just reply "not now" and I'll take you off this list. No hard feelings, and the door stays open whenever you need us.

And if the timing was just off, here's the link one last time: {{booking_link}}

Honour the exit instantly. Anyone who replies "not now" comes off the list that day and goes onto suppression permanently. That's what makes the ask sincere.

Check these before every batch

These decide whether tomorrow's batch goes out at all.

SIGNAL	WHAT IT MEANS	WHAT TO DO
Bounces under 3%	Clean, current list	Carry on. You can raise the daily count.
Bounces 3 to 5%	The list is aging	Hold the pace, don't increase.
Bounces over 5%	The data is stale, not the copy	Stop. Clean the list before sending again.
Any spam complaint	Wrong message or wrong people	Stop and reread the copy before the next batch.
Replies, no bookings	Interest is there, the ask isn't landing	Fix the Day 4 offer, keep the rest.

A high bounce rate is a list problem, not a sending problem. Pushing through it damages the reputation of every future email from your business.

TRACK ONE NUMBER

Revenue marked won, per campaign. When someone from the list books and pays, write the amount down against the campaign. That number tells you whether to run the list again in ninety days, and it usually says yes.

What to say when they answer

Speed is the whole game. A reply answered in minutes converts far better than one answered the next morning. Decide now who catches replies and keep these handy.

INTERESTED

Perfect! Grab whatever time suits you here: {{booking_link}}. Can't wait to see you again.

Don't sell. They already said yes.

"HOW MUCH?"

Great question. It's {{price or range}}, and that includes {{what's included}}. I have {{day}} at {{time}} open if that works?

Answer straight, then offer one specific time.

"JUST GOT BUSY"

Totally get it, that's most people! Want me to hold a spot for you? I have {{day}} or {{day}} open.

This is the reply Day 0 is built to get. Book it.

NOT NOW

No problem at all, thanks for letting me know. I've taken you off this list. The door's always open.

Suppress the same day. That's a future customer, not a lost one.

HAD A BAD EXPERIENCE

Thank you for telling me, and I'm sorry. I'd really like to hear what happened. Would you be open to a quick call?

Pick up the phone yourself. Fixing this one often earns a customer for life.

ANNOYED

Sorry about that, I've removed you and you won't hear from us again.

Suppress, apologise once, no defence. Then check how they ended up on the list.

Industry template packs

Your Day 0 and Day 14 emails work for every business exactly as written in Part 3. These packs give you the pieces that change by industry: the text, the Day 4 offer, what story to use on Day 8, and an honest Day 12 deadline. Paste them into the matching spot in the sequence and fill in the highlighted blanks.

Coaches and consultants

PACK 1

DAY 0

SWAP ONE
LINE

...realised it's been a while since we last worked together.

DAY 2

TEXT

Hi {{first_name}}, it's {{owner_first_name}}. Sent you a quick note this week, no pressure, just wanted to make sure it landed. Reply STOP to opt out.

DAY 4

THE OFFER

I've opened {{number}} complimentary 30 minute strategy sessions this month, just for past clients. We'll look at where things stand for you now and the one thing I'd change first.

If you'd like one, grab a time here: {{booking_link}}

DAY 8

THE PROOF

{{client_first_name}} came back for a session last month after {{time away}}. We spent it on {{specific problem}}, and within {{timeframe}} {{specific result}}.

DAY 12

THE DEADLINE

I'm closing out the past client sessions on {{day}}, and there are {{number}} left. After that my calendar goes back to paid sessions only.

Run it again in 90 days with: a new program or group launch, a January planning session, or a midyear reset call.

HVAC and home services

PACK 2

DAY 0
SWAP ONE
LINE

...realised it's been a while since we were last out at your place.

DAY 2
TEXT

Hi {{first_name}}, it's {{owner_first_name}} at {{business}}. Sent you an email this week, just checking it reached you. Reply STOP to opt out.

DAY 4
THE OFFER

We've opened up pre season {{tune up / inspection}} slots for {{season}} and I've kept a few back for customers we've worked with before. Takes about {{duration}}, and most people find one thing they're glad they caught before the first {{heat wave / cold snap}}.

Grab whatever time suits you here: {{booking_link}}

DAY 8
THE PROOF

{{customer_first_name}} booked in last week for a tune up. Our tech found {{specific finding, e.g. a failing capacitor}}. About {{ $ amount }} to fix now, versus {{ $ amount }} if it had failed in the middle of {{season}}.

DAY 12
THE DEADLINE

We're closing out the tune up slots on {{day}}, and there are {{number}} left. After that we're into peak season, which is usually a {{wait time}} wait for non emergency visits.

Run it again in 90 days with: the opposite season's tune up, a maintenance plan offer, or a check in right after a big weather event. Ask your techs for Day 8 stories; they have dozens.

Auto shops

PACK 3

DAY 0
SWAP ONE
LINE

...realised it's been a while since we last had your {{vehicle}} in.

DAY 2
TEXT

Hi {{first_name}}, it's {{owner_first_name}} at {{business}}. Sent you a quick email this week, just making sure it reached you. Reply STOP to opt out.

DAY 4
THE OFFER

We're running {{seasonal check, e.g. winter readiness inspections}} this month and kept a few slots for customers we've seen before. About {{duration}}, and it's the easiest way to avoid a surprise on the road.

Book here: {{booking_link}}

DAY 8
THE PROOF

{{customer_first_name}} came in for an inspection last week and we caught {{specific finding, e.g. brake pads down to 2mm}}. {{$ amount}} today, versus {{$ amount}} once it damages {{the next part}}.

DAY 12
THE DEADLINE

We're wrapping up the {{inspection}} slots on {{day}}, with {{number}} left.

Run it again in 90 days with: an oil change reminder based on their last visit date, road trip season, or tire season.

Salons and med spas

PACK 4

DAY 0
SWAP ONE
LINE

...noticed it's been a while since your last visit with {{provider_name}}.

DAY 2
TEXT

Hi {{first_name}} ! It's {{owner_first_name}} from {{business}}. Sent you a little note this week, just making sure it found you. Reply STOP to opt out.

DAY 4
THE OFFER

{{provider_name}} has a few openings held back for returning guests over the next two weeks, and every returning guest gets a complimentary {{add on, e.g. gloss treatment}} with their visit.

Grab a spot here: {{booking_link}}

DAY 8
THE PROOF

{{guest_first_name}} came back in last week after {{time away}} and asked for {{service}}. {{what they said or how it turned out}}.

DAY 12
THE DEADLINE

{{provider_name}}'s held spots open up to everyone on {{day}}, and there are {{number}} left.

Med spas, a heads up: treatment results claims have stricter rules than most marketing. Keep your Day 8 story factual, get the guest's written okay, and skip before and after promises. Run it again in 90 days with: holiday or wedding season, a new service, or a new provider joining the team.

Insurance agents and brokers

PACK 5

DAY 0
SWAP ONE
LINE

...realised it's been a while since we last sat down and looked at your coverage together.

DAY 2
TEXT

Hi {{first_name}}, it's {{owner_first_name}}. Sent you an email this week about your coverage, just making sure it reached you. Reply STOP to opt out.

DAY 4
THE OFFER

I'm doing complimentary 20 minute coverage reviews for past clients this month. Rates and life have both moved a lot since we last talked, and it's worth a fresh look to make sure you're not overpaying or under covered.

Pick a time here: {{booking_link}}

DAY 8
THE PROOF

Had a review last week with a client I hadn't spoken to in {{time}}. We found {{specific gap or saving}}, which {{what it meant for them}}.

DAY 12
THE DEADLINE

{{renewal or enrollment window}} closes on {{date}}. If you'd like to review before then, I have {{number}} spots left: {{booking_link}}

A compliance heads up: check your carrier and state rules before sending, keep client details anonymous on Day 8, and if you sell Medicare plans, follow the CMS marketing rules. Only text numbers that opted in. Run it again in 90 days with: a renewal date, a life event check in, or a new carrier you've added.

Your 14 day tracker

Print this or copy it into a spreadsheet. Fill in one row per batch, check the bounce rate against the send rules in Part 4, and total it up on Day 14.

DATE	BATCH	SENT	BOUNCED	BOUNCE %	REPLIES	BOOKED	REVENUE WON
	1
	2
	3
	4
	5
	6
	7
	8
	9
	10
	11
	12
TOTAL CONTACTED		TOTAL REPLIES		TOTAL BOOKED		REVENUE WON

SHARE YOUR NUMBER

Post your Day 14 totals in the community. Seeing what other members pull from lists they'd written off is the best motivation there is to run yours.

RUNNING IT ON REPEAT

Your list isn't spent after one pass

Anyone who didn't reply, and didn't opt out, can be worked again in about ninety days with a different angle: a seasonal reason, a new service, or a genuine change in your business. Everyone who booked comes off the win back list and into your normal follow up.

- Every 90 days: rerun the non responders with a fresh Day 4 offer and a new Day 8 story.
- Every new customer: add them to the list the day they become inactive, so the list keeps growing.
- Every campaign: write down revenue won. That's how you'll know it's working.

Done by hand, this is roughly an hour a day: split the list, write the batch, watch the bounces, catch the replies. That hour is exactly the part that gets dropped in week two, which is why most reactivation campaigns die halfway through. Not because the messages stopped working.

WHEN YOU'RE READY

Want the Dead List Miner to run it for you?

Our AI employee drafts each batch in your voice, checks every address against your suppression list, paces the sends, watches the bounce rate and routes replies to you. You approve every campaign before a single message goes out.

Book a free 15 minute call and we'll look at your actual list and tell you straight whether it's worth working.

Book a call →

infinityreachmedia.com/book · Free, 15 minutes, and you keep the playbook either way.